

How the game is played.

When a bill is introduced, it goes to a committee. There is no requirement for committees to do anything at all with bills. In fact, most bills simply die in committee.

Sometimes Senators will introduce a bill, or co-sponsor someone else's bill, then forget about it. Sometimes they will say they can't influence a bill once it goes to a committee, especially if the chair of the committee doesn't like the proposal.

But your Senator can influence what happens in committees. Here's how:

Your Senator can ask the chair of the committee to hold hearings on a bill and permit your Senator to testify about the bill.

Even when there are hearings, sometimes a committee chair won't allow further action on the bill. But your Senator can ask the chair to schedule a vote.

If the chair won't schedule a vote, your Senator can organize a discharge resolution. With only 24 other signatures, your legislator can ask the entire Senate to vote on the bill.

At every step in the process, the leadership of each party can influence what happens. Since leaders are elected by the members, your Senator can hold leadership accountable by publicly asking leaders for their support.

How your Senator votes is the ultimate test. However, committee votes often are not recorded or made public. Your Senator can get recorded votes and post them on his or her official web site.

Finally, nearly every law requires the Governor's approval. So your Senator can work to get the Governor's support and leadership.

A Check List for Your Senator

Writing letters, participating in vigils, and visiting legislators are important ways to hold your legislators accountable for giving Pennsylvania one of the best school funding systems in America.

Use this checklist to keep track of what your Senator is doing. It contains a step-by-step guide to the things Senator will do – both in your community and in Harrisburg – when they're really trying to get the job done.

When filling out the checklist for your Senator, remember that only public actions count. We can only measure what we can see.

See the back of this checklist for insights into the legislative process.
